

Prin. Your money.
Poin. Villaines.

As they are sharing, the Prince & Poynes set upon them, they all run away, and Falstaffe after a blow or two runs away too, leaving the booty behind them.

Prin. Got with much eate. Now merrily to horse, the theeves are scattered, and posselt with feare so strongly, that they dare not meet each other, each take his fellow for an officer, away good Ned, Falstaffe I weare to death, and lards the leane earth as he walkes along: wert not for laughing, I should pittie him:

Exeunt.

Enter Hotspur solus, reading a Letter.

But for mine owne part, my Lord, I could be well contented to be there, in respect of the loue I beare your house.

He could be contented, why is he not then? in respect of the loue he beares our house: he shoves in this, he loues his own barne better then he loues our house. Let me see some more.

The purpose you undertake is dangerous.

Why thats certaine, tis dangerous to take a cold, to sleep, to drinke; but I tell you (my Lord foole) out of this nettle danger, we plucke this flower safety.

The purpose you undertake is dangerous, the friends you haue named uncertaine, the time it selfe vnforted, and your whole plot too light, for the counterpoise of so great an opposition.

Say you so, say you so, I lay vnto you again, you are a shallow cowardly hinde, & you lie: what a lack-braine is this? by the Lord our plot is a good plot as euer was laid, our friend true & constant: a good plot, good friends, & ful of expectatiō an excellent plot, very good friends; what a frosty spirited rogue is this? why my L. of Yorke cōmends the plot, & the general course of the action, Zounds & I were now by this rascal I could braine him with his Ladies Fanne. Is there not my father my vnckle, & my selfe, Lord Edmond Mortimer, my Lord of Yorke, & Owen Glendower? Is there not besides the Douglas? haue I not all the letters to meet me in Armes by the ninth of the next month? and are they not some of the set forward already? What a pagan rascal is this & Infidell? Ha, you shall see now in very sincerity of feare and cold heart, will he to the King, and lay open all our proceedings. O, I could diuide my selfe.

Thy stomacke, pleasure, and thy golden sleepe?

Why dost thou bend thine eies vpon the earth,

And start so often when thou sitst alone?

Why hast thou lost the fresh bloud in thy cheek

And giuen my treasures and my rights of thee,

To thicke-eyd musing, and curst melancholy?

In my faint slumbers, I by thee watcht,

And heard thee murmur tales of yron Warres

Speake tearmes of manage to thy bounding Stee

Cry courage to the field: And thou hast talkt

Of fallies; and retires, trenches, tents,

Of Pallizadoes, frontiers, parapets,

Of basilisks, of canon, culuerin,

Of prisoners ransome, and of souldiers slaine,

And all the current, of a heddy fight,

Thy spirit within thee hath been so at war,

And thus hath so bestird thee in thy sleepe,

That beds of sweat hath stood vpon thy brow,

Like bubbles in a late disturbed streame,

And in thy face strange motions haue appeard,

Such as we see when men restraine their breath

On some great sodaine hast. O what portents are

Some heauy busines hath my Lord in hand,

And I must know it, else he loues me not.
